FAQs on COVID-19

COVID-19 (IDPH)

COVID-19 is a contagious disease caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus. The virus spreads through respiratory droplets when an infected person coughs, sneezes, or talks. It is spread through close contact with another infected person. The virus can be transmitted through the respiratory tract of the infected person. It is spread through respiratory droplets when an infected person coughs, sneezes, or talks. It is spread through close contact with another infected person. The virus can be transmitted through the respiratory tract of the infected person. It is spread through respiratory droplets when an infected person coughs, sneezes, or talks. It is spread through close contact with another infected person. The virus can be transmitted through the respiratory tract of the infected person.